

```
/*
* C program to input N numbers and store them in an array.
* Do a linear search for a given key and report success or failure.
*/
```

```
#include <stdio.h>
```

```
void main()
```

```
{ int num;
```

```
int i, keynum, found = 0;
```

```
printf("Enter the number of elements ");
```

```
scanf("%d", &num);
```

```
int array[num];
```

```
printf("Enter the elements one by one \n");
```

```
for (i = 0; i < num; i++)
```

```
{
```

```
    scanf("%d", &array[i]);
```

```
}
```

```
printf("Enter the element to be searched ");
```

```
scanf("%d", &keynum);
```

```
/* Linear search begins */
```

```
for (i = 0; i < num ; i++)
{
    if (keynum == array[i] )
    {
        found = 1;
        break;
    }
}
if (found == 1)
    printf("Element is present in the array at position %d",i+1);
else
    printf("Element is not present in the array\n");
}
```